FRIDAY EVE'NG., DECEMBER 4.

ACCOMMODATING. - Iowa has a case of amicable family accommodation of the most compromising spirit. Thirteen years ago a young couple were married in Davenport, with the reservation that the hurband should depart rich, come home and make his wife happy. He went to California and she stayed in her father's house. In the meantime the two were to correspond like lovers. In a year his letters coased, and in another six months she heard that he was dead. Thus that spiritual union was broken, and soon another man, and one of property and station, came wooing the widow. For some reason she never told him she was a widow, and he matried her ignorant of the fact that there had been a marriage and a death in her heart. The new couple went to farming and raised a family to Scott county. The other day the first husband came home to Davenport and was told about the doings in Scott county. He went out there, saw his wife, said he was rich and wanted her. The father of the family was not at home. She reasoned the case with No. 1. showed him the results of her married life, and implored him to be merciful. Explanations were made on both sides, and that couple parted forever. Another explanation became necessary, and that was ait right. The lady applied for a divorce from her first husband on the ground of desertion; he was notified and accepted service, and that day started for Europe with his hoarded wealth. The defendant will not be there when his name is called in court, and a divorce will be granted wedding. NEW PROCESSES. - A substitute for lithographic stone has been introduced, and, it is said, with success. According to this method, the operator takes a block or slab of slate, which is to be made perfectly smooth and true, and then coated with glue or other gelatinous matter. The coated block is exposed to the sualight, and then washed to remove the superfluous coating, and, after being dried, it is ready for drawing or writing upon. The ink, or pigment, is prepared with albumen, or other gelatinous material, dissolved in a saturated solution of bichromate of potash, either with or without chrome alum, and with a small quantity of ivory black to render the ink vis-

by default. There will have to be another

The picture is drawn upon the prepared block with this ink and exposed to sunlight, and afterward the surface is covered with gum or glycerine, the block being then ready for the printer. Another method in this art has also been introduced, which consists in the use of metallic substances, such as tiu, brass and zinc, these being first prepared by rubbing with a solution formed of one ounce of hydrochloric acid; one-fourth of an ounce of zinc, and a small quantity of glacial acetic acid. After the plate has received the impression from the stone or wood in an ordinary lithographic press, or by means of a transfer, the ink thereon is dried by heating the plate, which is afterwards plunged, while still hot, into cold The ordinary ink is used in this pro-

np 22--ti THE SOUTHERN BREAKFAST WHEAT.

Made from pure selected Southern Grain. Especially adapted to persons of sedentary habits. Tre best writers on health unite in pronouncing the hard Southern Wheat more strengthening and invigorating in its properties than wheat raised in more northern latitudes. For Persons in Health-It ministers to the daily requirements of the whole human system. It feeds the brain, and thus enables the Clergyman, Lawyer, Physician, Editor or Student to perform increased labor and continually replenish the brain power. It gives nerve and vital torce to the Merchant and Manufacturer. It furnishes to the laboring man the greatest am unt of muscle-making and life-supporting material-more than twice the amount turnish-ed in the white bread so generally in use. As a Breakfast Dish it is unequalled, and now rapidly coming into general use in the Hotels, Boarding Houses and Private Families in this country. Its preparation for the table is very simple—can be used for dessert in puddings, or in muffins, griddle cakes, and as por-ridge, gruel or mush. Directions for cooking on oping the young brain, nerves and muscles and strening the body.

For Dyspeptics and Invalids—All persons suffering from weakness of the digestive organs will find great relief and comfort in the use of the Southern Breakfast Wheat. For persons advanced in life, whose orces have been impaired, the Southern Breakfast Wheat will be found a most generous and vitalizing diet, replenishing the system with vigor, and but ding up the general heath.

VIEWS OF SCIENTIFIC MEN "Wheat by common consent ranks first in nutritive value among grains. It abounds in the valuable elements which the body requires; mineral matter for the bones; gluten for the tissues, starch for respiration."-[Youmans. SWEET CORN, cooked and dried, by the pound; also 20 cases Canned Tomatoes and depends very much upon the proportion of gluten it contains. By sifting out the bran we render the meal less nutritious ..... the total separation of the covering of the grain causes much waste of who esome human food. Bread or food made from the whole wheat or meal is therefore more nutritious, and, as many persons find it ought to be more generally prepared and used. -[Johnston. The outer husk of the wheat grain contains no being very absorbent of moisture, readily generates mould and decay. By our improved process of decortication, this worthless, unwholesome husk is removed, (but not the inner bran ) while, at the same time, the unbroken grain is cleans d of smut, cockle, just, insect eggs, and other impurities, (so common to all wheat,) and thoroughly dried.
